

EDWARD P. MITCHELL

Friday evening March 26 '20

My dear Mr. Harris:

When I wrote you as to train times the muddle was daylight saving in New York and non-daylight saving in New Jersey had not developed.

Next Tuesday the clocks will have been advanced all here in New York, as perhaps, but probably not, in Jersey.

So, as far as human intelligence can at this moment foresee, a person leaving New York at Jersey next ~~and~~ on New York time, and coming on to Hoboken to catch a train scheduled 3:40 will find that Manhattan train there just the same, arriving there, but with its nominal time of departure advanced to 2:40, to meet the local discrepancy. According to the higher mathematics, he will get to Glen Ridge nearly before he leaves Hoboken. I hope this is clear.

But whether by New York or New Jersey train we shall be glad to see you.

Yours Sincerely

Rev. J. W. Davis.

E. P. Mitchell
